

Barbara J Firth

With a background in social services organisations as a practitioner, manager and educator, for the last 30 years Barbara has been an independent trainer and consultant. During that time she has worked extensively with inter-professional groups at all levels in order to develop policy, practice and systems in services for children and adults.

That work has included designing and facilitating training courses and events for practitioners, operational managers and strategic managers; undertaking serious case reviews, audits and service evaluations; and providing supervision and consultancy for a wide range of professionals including Designated and Named Health Professionals and Senior Managers in Local Authority Services. Barbara has also worked with Case Management agencies as an independent consultant. This has included mentoring senior staff and providing safeguarding advice.
