

Sinead Macinnes

Sinead is a freelance anti-oppression facilitator, writer and actress from Scotland. Her aim in all of her work is to develop a human-centred and empathic approach through which we can analyse ourselves and society. She has over six years' experience as a facilitator working in various capacities including arts-based youth engagement, anti-oppression and social justice workshops, primarily in London as well as in Scotland and across the UK. She has a BA in African Studies from The School of Oriental & African Studies in London and is a fluent Gàidhlig speaker.
